URGE ADOPTION OF EMPLOYMENT INSURANCE BILL

PROF. JOHN R. COMMONS SAYS MEASURE NEEDED TO MAINTAIN CAPITALIST SYSTEM; DENNISON TELLS RESULTS

(By Associated Press)

Madison, Wis.—Unemployment insurance as proposed by the Huber bill now before the senate of the Wisconsin legislature was explained as a measure intended to insure employes the same security of a job that investors are now assured of security of capital, at a hearing on the bill before the judiciary committee of the upper house held yesterday afternoon.

Many Hear Arguments

The assembly chamber of the legislature was packed with persons from all over the state in Madison to attend the hearing on this proposal and on the two general tax bills before the finance committee this afternoon. Business interests and labor leaders were among the hundred who came to hear arguments in support and in opposition to the unemployment measure.

Prof. John R. Commons of the University of Wisconsin and Henry Dennison of the Dennison Manufacturing company, Farmingham, Mass., were the chief speakers in support of the bill. George Kull, secretary of the Wisconsin manufacturers' association offered the principal argument against its acceptance on the ground that it would unduly burden industry and force it from Wisconsin.

No Security to Labor

Prof. Commons declared that industry which depends upon investors to furnish capital and labor to furnish production has in the past furnished security to investment but has worked upon the theory that labor should take care of itself. He said that it was reasonable to ask that employers should look upon labor in the same light that they view capital and guarantee the same consideration.

It was explained that the unemployment insurance bill is drawn on the same plan as the compensation insurance act enacted by the legislature in 1911. It has the same safeguards to industry and is offered as the same sort of an experiment, Professor Commons said.

"Nobody would advocate this bill, nobody could afford to advocate it unless he felt it is highly important for the welfare of the state," the Professor said. "In behalf of the permanency of the capitalistic system which I feel is essential to give prosperity to the country, I think this bill is necessary.

"If we want to preserve this system against revolution and against obstruction, we must guard against unemployment which is the greatest source of bitterness in the relation between employer and employe."

Tells of Experience

Mr. Dennison, officer of one of the large manufacturing plants of the nation, spoke as an ardent advocate of the proposed bill. He explained how in his business its principles had been applied over a period of 15 years with marked success and with a great benefit to the concern.

He explained that the measure would not completely prevent unemployment but would mitigate its effects and be a step in advance acting as a constant spur to employers to find work for their men.

"Unemployment insurance," he said, "should not be looked upon by employers as a burden, but as an investment. During the first few years this investment will cost money. It should bear dividends for an employer who would make any kind of an effort to cooperate in its enforcement. It will be besides an incentive to improve conditions of business management."

Mr. Dennison declared that the unemployment insurance bill came in the same category as the original compensation insurance for injury.

LITTLE HOPE FOR ANTI-GUARD BILL IN STATE SENATE

STATE AFFAIRS COMMITTEE UNANIMOUS AGAINST SENATE MEASURE SIMILAR TO BILL PASSED BY HOUSE

(By Asociated Press)

Madison, Wis.—A crimp was put in the plans of opponents of the Wisconsin National Guard by the state affairs committee of the Senate today when it sent in a unamous report to the upper house recommending indefinite postponement of the Hirsch bill which provides for abolition of the state's military force.

Answers Assembly Vote

This action is accepted as an answer to the assembly stand taken yesterday by finally passing the Polakowsky bill, a duplicate of that introduced by Senator J. J. Hirsch, Milwaukee socialist, calling for disruption of the Guard.

It revives the spirits of the friends of the National Guard which reached low ebb following the lower house vote.

This definite stand of the Senate committee, concurred in by two administration senators, shows that abolition of the National Guard is out of the question, committee members say.

Will Vote Wednesday

A vote on the Hirsch bill be taken probably next Wednesday. When that proposal is disposed of the Polakowsky bill, passed by the assembly and likewise providing for abolition of the Guard, will be up for consideration.

Committee members state that it would be some time before they acted on the measure.

"LIFER" FREED BY BOY'S CONFESSION

OHIO MAN CONVICTED OF MURDER THROUGH YOUTH'S ADMISSION OF GUILT

(By Associated Press)

Columbus, O., Feb. 21—Three words "I am guilty," from the lips of another man and an indefinite number of years behind bleak, cold walls of Ohio prison today dwindled into hours for Clarence Leroy McKinney, convict 51210, who five months ago began a life sentence for murder.

Convicted despite his protest of innocence of murder of Special Policeman Emery McCreight at Wilmington February 14, 1922, McKinney, a hucker, was guilty in the eyes of the jurists who sentenced him.

Boy Pleads Guilty

In the same court room at Wilmington where McKinney was sentenced, with the same judge presiding, a boy in his early twenties, Louis Vanderfoort, son of a wealthy fruit grower near Jamestown, first arrested on a charge of robbery, yesterday pleaded guilty to the murder of McCreight.

He was sentenced to life imprisonment in the penitentiary.

"Well, we all have our troubles," McKinney told Warden Thomas. "I have always had the feeling that I would get out. I didn't feel so very bad about it because I knew I was not guilty. I felt more sorry for my wife and mother than for myself—the humiliation was hard on them."

German Payments Have Reached Into Millions

(By Associated Press)

Berlin, Feb. 21—Germany's payments to the allies between November 1918 and September, 1922 under the Versailles peace treaty and supplement agerement amounted to 45,600,000,000 gold marks, according to official German complications made here.

If Germany's losses in the execution of the treaty terms are taken into account, it is declared here, that the total payments have been 56,000,000,000 gold marks.

Inclusion of the value of Alsace Lorraine and other former German colonies bring the grand total to more than 100,000,000,000 gold marks.

In its latest note to the French, British and Belgian governments and the Rhineland Commission at Coblenz the German government stresses strong protest against the explusion of President Fuchs of the Rhine provinces.

The note also protests against the explusion of German officials from the occupied area, characterizing such expulsions as brutal.

A number of German officials were arrested and immediately sent away. Members of their families were also expelled, "which donates great brutality" in view of the well known housing shortage.

Tells of Experience

Mr. Dennison, officer of one of the large manufacturing plants of the nation, spoke as an ardent advocate of the proposed bill. He explained how in his business its principles had been applied over a period of 15 years with marked success and with a great benefit to the concern.

He explained that the measure would not completely prevent unemployment but would mitigate its effects and be a step in advance acting as a constant spur to employers to find work for their men.

"Unemployment insurance," he said, "should not be looked upon by employers as a burden, but as an investment. During the first few years this investment will cost money. It should bear dividends for an employer who would make any kind of an effort to cooperate in its enforcement. It will be besides an incentive to improve conditions of business management."

Mr. Dennison declared that the unemployment insurance bill came in the same category as the original compensation insurance for injury.

LITTLE HOPE FOR ANTI-GUARD BILL IN STATE SENATE

STATE AFFAIRS COMMITTEE UNANIMOUS AGAINST SENATE MEASURE SIMILAR TO BILL PASSED BY HOUSE

(By Associated Press)

Madison, Wis.—A crimp was put in the plans of opponents of the Wisconsin National Guard by the state affairs committee of the Senate today when it sent in a unamous report to the upper house recommending indefinite postponement of the Hirsch bill which provides for abolition of the state's military force.

Answers Assembly Vote

This action is accepted as an answer to the assembly stand taken yesterday by finally passing the Polakowsky bill, a duplicate of that introduced by Senator J. J. Hirsch, Milwaukee socialist, calling for disruption of the Guard.

It revives the spirits of the friends of the National Guard which reached low ebb following the lower house vote.

This definite stand of the Senate committee, concurred in by two administration senators, shows that abolition of the National Guard is out of the question, committee members say.

Will Vote Wednesday

A vote on the Hirsch bill be taken probably next Wednesday. When that proposal is disposed of the Polakowsky bill, passed by the assembly and likewise providing for abolition of the Guard, will be up for consideration.

Committee members state that it would be some time before they acted on the measure.

The Premier asserted that the decrease was due "to disturbed conditions caused by orders from Berlin.'

Dr. Hugh P. Baker, executive secretary of the American Pulp & Paper Ass'n., a resident of New York and former Wisconsin man, was a guest in this city today. He spoke for a few minutes before the Rotary Club on the forest problem in this state. "If Wisconsin wants to keep the paper and the lumbering industries within her borders, the state will have to get busy and put the forests back onto the denuded lands." He said that the paper industry will never see the supply of timber products exhausted.

(By Associated Press)

Madison, Wis., Feb. 21—A list of sixty-five Wisconsin manufacturing concerns which will not go forward with expansion work definitely decided upon or contemplated in event of the passage of legislation now pending in the state legislature was read by George Kull, secretary of the Wisconsin Manufacturing Association, at the hearing on the Severson and Dahl tax bills before the joint finance committee of the Senate and Assembly this afternoon.

"LIFER" FREED BY BOY'S CONFESSION

OHIO MAN CONVICTED OF MURDER THROUGH YOUTH'S ADMISSION OF GUILT

(By Associated Press)

Columbus, O., Feb. 21—Three words "I am guilty," from the lips of another man and an indefinite number of years behind bleak, cold walls of Ohio prison today dwindled into hours for Clarence Leroy McKinney, convict 51210, who five months ago began a life sentence for murder.

Convicted despite his protest of innocence of murder of Special Policeman Emery McCreight at Wilmington February 14, 1922, McKinney, a huckster, was guilty in the eyes of the jurists who sentenced him.

Boy Pleads Guilty

In the same court room at Wilmington where McKinney was sentenced, with the same judge presiding, a boy in his early twenties, Louis Vanderfoort, son of a wealthy fruit grower near Jamestown, first arrested on a charge of robbery, yesterday pleaded guilty to the murder of McCreight.

He was sentenced to life imprisonment in the penitentiary.

"Well, we all have our troubles," McKinney told Warden Thomas. "I have always had the feeling that I would get out. I didn't feel so very bad about it because I knew I was not guilty. I felt more sorry for my wife and mother than for myself—the humiliation was hard on them."

German Payments Have Reached Into Millions

(By Associated Press)

Berlin, Feb. 21—Germany's payments to the allies between November 1918 and September, 1922 under the Versailles peace treaty and supplement agerement amounted to 45,600,000,000 gold marks, according to official German complications made here.

If Germany's losses in the execution of the treaty terms are taken into account, it is declared here, that the total payments have been 56,000,000,000 gold marks.

Inclusion of the value of Alsace Lorraine and other former German colonies bring the grand total to more than 100,000,000,000 gold marks.

In its latest note to the French, British and Belgian governments and the Rhineland Commission at Coblenz the German government stresses strong protest against the explusion of President Fuchs of the Rhine provinces.

The note also protests against the explusion of German officials from the occupied area, characterizing such expulsions as brutal.

A number of German officials were arrested and immediately sent away. Members of their families were also expelled, "which donates great brutality" in view of the well known housing shortage.

Scouts Receive Pledges Of $1200 Today From Rotarians

Pledges of $1200 for the 1923 budget for the Boy Scouts were received today when member of the Rotary club were solicited for pledges. The pledges were made following the presentation for the club of the situation. A novel method was used in telling of the situation when Chick Anderson, a Nekoosa lad appeared in the hall announcing that he was Rotary International. He was interrogated by John Roberts. The lad said that Rotary was famous for its boys work activities. He was interrupted by Philleo Nash, in an old scout uniform, threadbare and footsore, who appeared at the back door and asked for admittance and assistance. He represented the scout movement in this city and community. He too was interrogated by John Roberts and the financial affairs of the Scout council were drawn from him. Scout Executive Wilcox and Mayor Roenius put the matter of support up to the Rotarians and pledge cards were passed which netted the Scout Council $1200 of the $5,000 needed.

Today was the 18th anniversary of the founding of International Rotary and the club recognized the day with the program in behalf of the Scout movement. Mayor Roenius who is head of the committee, announced that the drive for funds would be carried to the public.

Assemblyman E. E. Royce is entitled to congratulations on the matter of his vote on the bill to kill the National Guard. He voted against the bill. For a newcomer to go to the Assembly and use his own and vote as he feels he should vote on principles instead of the way the politicians urge him to vote, shows he is on the right track. We are glad to see that Mr. Royce has used his own judgment and has not been gobbled up by the politicians.

TIMES CHANGE

It is encouraging to note that Riverview Hospital Ass'n. is in such flourishing condition and that institution is making the progress it richly deserves. In years gone by the hospital has been a problem. Due to its able management and the cooperation of the public it is no longer the big problem that it used to be. That does not mean that the institution does not still need the assistance, good will, moral and financial backing of the community. It is when we as citizens of this community withdraw our support that it gets into difficulties. Let's keep up the good work and make it a continued success.

FARMER'S PITCHFORK FORCES HEARING

American farmers are staggering under a mortgage debt of about seven thousand millions of dollars, land bank advances of nearly four thousand millions, and personal loans of one thousand millions. On top of this tremendous burden he has to meet the highest direct tax and the most burdensome indirect tax of this nation.

In view of the fact that nearly all other professions and industries are dependent on agriculture, and that it is by far the largest industry, the conditions represented in the foregoing statement, made by the Secretary of the Treasury, is not only a matter of deep concern, it is really alarming.

A few Western and Southern Senators and Congressmen who understand the situation are bending every effort to provide some substantial measure of relief, but so far their efforts have been limited to propositions opening the way for the farmer to borrow money at rates of interest beyond his power to pay, thus getting him further into debt.

Several state legislatures and farmers associations in the South and West are adopting resolutions to the effect that it is not increased banking facilities that is needed so much as it is a stabilizing of markets and prices and a lower cost of distribution. Another complaint is that exchange speculators make and unmake values regardless of stocks and facts.

The election of last November had the effect of a vigorous prod of the pitchfork in the backs of some of the lawmakers, with the result that several "relief" measures have been introduced, a brief review of which will be of interest.

The Farm Loan Board was established in 1916, but did not get into real operation until 1921 because of a suit instituted in Missouri attacking its constitutionality. Under this law over $700,000,000 has been advanced to farmers at about 5 percent interest, and loans to farmers are being made at the rate of $200,000,000 per year.

FEDERAL INCOME TAX FACTS

No. 22.

Since interest paid may be deducted from gross income, it follows that interest received is subject to the income tax, and should be included in gross incom of the recipient. Interest need not be received in cash, but it is constructively received when it is credited or held subject to call, as in the case of savings deposits and bonds. The interest on certain securities, such as United States bonds issued before September 2, 1917, the obligations of a State, Territory, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, and securities issued under the Federal farm loan act, is entirely exempt from the income tax, as is also interest credited to postal savings accounts on moneys deposited in postal savings banks. Interest, which is not taxable, however, must be reported, as indicated by questions on the income tax return.

Bonds of private corporations operating public utilities and the bonds of foreign governments are not exempt.

The interest upon United States bonds of the First Liberty loan and all prior issues, and upon the 3 3-4 per cent Victory notes, is wholly exempt from normal and surtax. All other United States bonds are exempt from the normal tax, but the surtax applies to interest upon any such bonds held in excess of certain amounts of principal, as provided for by the revenue act.

Booze Ownership Jail Offense If Drys Win Point

(By Associated Press)

Madison, Wis.—The drys in the Wisconsin legislature today indicated their requests for new legislation to make prohibition enforcement more effective with the announcement that a bill would be offered making it "an offense punishable by not less than 10 days in jail for any person to have in his person or in his possession or under his control any liquid capable of being used as a beverage and containing more than one-half of one per cent of alcohol, at any place of public gathering or on any premises of such a place.

Six Months for Sellers

In addition the bill would provide that "any person found guilty of selling, bartering, or trafficing or giving away any such beverage at any such place with the intent to evade the law should be sentenced to not less than six months in prison." It would include dances, resturants, cafes cabarets, and other forms of public gathering.

This proposal is aimed to eliminate all drinking at dances, which wets are said to be complaining of. It was announced by R. P. Rutton, retiring superintendent of the state Anti-Saloon league who is leaving the state to take up work with The American Bond, the educational department of the league.

SPEAKER CLAIMS THAT BODIES NEED EACH OTHER TO HELP CARRY OUT THEIR OWN IDEAS AND BELIEFS.

Cleveland, O.—The attitude of the Church toward Labor should be friendly because the aims of Labor are in harmony with the aims of the church, Edmund B. Chaffee, of New York, told the meeting of the Council of Cities of the Methodist Episcopal church here today.

"Of the 46 million Protestants and 27 Million Catholics in this country, the majority are workers", said Mr. Chaffee. "They go to make up the 40,000,000 or more gainfully employed. As the labor movement has to do with their economic well-being they must be interested in it.

Need Moral Idealism

"Labor must be interested in the Church because to win the American people it must win a population of which the vast majority are Church members. Labor needs the moral idealism which the church possesses.

"The attitude of Labor in Russia has been hostile to the Church; on the continent, generally hostile; in England, much hostility prevails but it is moderated by some leaders; in the United States, where the Labor movement is relatively small we have something of the same hostility as in England and a large amount of indifference; here some of the strongest Unions are Jewish.

Attitude Hostile

"The attitude of the Church toward Labor in Russia has been hostile; on the continent hostile; in England a mixture and in the United States a spirit of hostility prevails.

"But about 15 years ago a change set in. The Church is meeting the situation as shown by the work of the Federal Council; the awakening of the Y. M. C. Demand Ban On Dairy Labels On Substitutes

Madison, Wis., Feb. 20—The assembly passed unanimously yesterday afternoon a bill introduced by Assemblyman Freehoff which would make it illegal for any concern manufacturing imitation dairy products to use any dairy word in labeling. A fine of $1,000 is provided. This proposal is aimed particularly at products made from various oils and represented with dairy symbols on their covers.

Assemblyman Freehoff pointed out that his proposal was introduced as a protection to the Wisconsin dairy industry which he said is being threatened by the increased number of substitute products for the actual dairy creations.

Helping The Dealer To Sell

Every manufacturer appreciates, in some degree, the importance of helping the retailer sell his product. And yet in many instances that degree is very small. It can hardly be compared in importance—so thinks a certain type of manufacturer—with selling the product to the dealer.

It is nothing short of a false assumption, unsound and untrustworthy, to think that merely stocking up the dealer with a product constitutes effective distribution. Effort of that kind, it is true, may dispose of a lot of goods, but it does not sell them. Unless the consumer comes in prepared or disposed to buy them they will remain on the shelf of the dealer, re-orders will be impossible, and the whole product will be a failure.

The safe alternative is for the manufacturer to create a consumer demand through Advertising. This will help the dealer move the goods, and then he will order more.

Advertising is as much a basic part of the business of the manufacturer of any specific trade-marked product as is production and distribution. It is not something that can be considered merely as an expense to be curtailed to the minimum. It is a creative influence which, more than any other thing after the merit of the product, determines the extent of the consumer demand.

Too often the manufacturer thinks of his advertising as a clever means of impressing the dealer with the desirability of stocking up with his goods, and he does enough to accomplish that effect, and then expects the dealer to move the goods. This is a mistaken use of advertising and it quickly reacts upon the manufacturer.

It is the business of the dealer to provide the goods which the public demand. He would be foolish to do otherwise, and would soon cease to be a dealer. It is the business of the manufacturer—meaning specifically, the manufacturer of a trade-marked article, or one that might be trade-marked—to create a consumer demand by means of Advertising.

Senator Norris introduced a bill which was defeated by a vote of 53 to 19, because it was too "socialistic" and put the government into business. The bill provides that the government step in between the producer and the consumer, eliminate costly distribution processes, and stabilize the industry by purchasing and marketing its products—in fact, have a monopoly of the distribution of food. It provided for a farmers' and producers' financial corporation to which the government would subscribe $100,000,000 of capital. A fine of $1,000 is provided. This proposal is aimed particularly at products made from various oils and represented with dairy symbols on their covers.

Assemblyman Freehoff pointed out that his proposal was introduced as a protection to the Wisconsin dairy industry which he said is being threatened by the increased number of substitute products for the actual dairy creations.

Helping The Dealer To Sell

Every manufacturer appreciates, in some degree, the importance of helping the retailer sell his product. And yet in many instances that degree is very small. It can hardly be compared in importance—so thinks a certain type of manufacturer—with selling the product to the dealer.

It is nothing short of a false assumption, unsound and untrustworthy, to think that merely stocking up the dealer with a product constitutes effective distribution. Effort of that kind, it is true, may dispose of a lot of goods, but it does not sell them. Unless the consumer comes in prepared or disposed to buy them they will remain on the shelf of the dealer, re-orders will be impossible, and the whole product will be a failure.

The safe alternative is for the manufacturer to create a consumer demand through Advertising. This will help the dealer move the goods, and then he will order more.

Advertising is as much a basic part of the business of the manufacturer of any specific trade-marked product as is production and distribution. It is not something that can be considered merely as an expense to be curtailed to the minimum. It is a creative influence which, more than any other thing after the merit of the product, determines the extent of the consumer demand.

Too often the manufacturer thinks of his advertising as a clever means of impressing the dealer with the desirability of stocking up with his goods, and he does enough to accomplish that effect, and then expects the dealer to move the goods. This is a mistaken use of advertising and it quickly reacts upon the manufacturer.

It is the business of the dealer to provide the goods which the public demand. He would be foolish to do otherwise, and would soon cease to be a dealer. It is the business of the manufacturer—meaning specifically, the manufacturer of a trade-marked article, or one that might be trade-marked—to create a consumer demand by means of Advertising.

Open Drive For Northern Lakes Park Association

(By Associated Press)

Madison, Wis.—A drive to obtain 10,000 members to the Wisconsin Lakes and Parks association, conducting a campaign for purchase of the Northern lakes parks, was announced today by A. A. Fisk, executive secretary of the organization. Funds obtained by this drive are to be used in preserving some of the native scenic spots of the state.

"The immediate task of the association is the acquisition of that tract of 5,000 acres of virgin forest in Price and Sawyer counties, known as the Northern Lakes park," a statement issued by Mr. Fisk says. "This area bisected by eight miles of the beautiful Flambeau river, embraces a chain of a dozen lakes of surpassing charm thus combining in an unusual way forest, lakes and river.

"The Wisconsin Lakes and Parks association have accepted the acquisition of this property as their first responsibility. Every effort is being made by the association to secure this property for a state park along the current year."

It is the plan of the association to make the work of the association self-supporting through its membership. The only fair and equitable way to acquire national park properties is by an appropriation made by government.

Wesley Barry in "Rags to Riches" which is playing at the Palace Theater, was even better than in his previous picture "School Days." Here Wesley is the same befreckled, fun loving, mischevious youngster who delighted the local fans in "School Days."

The story is about young Marmaduke Clarke, only child of a wealthy family, who is given every luxury. But he longs for the vigorous life of boyhood. While reading the book "Diamond Dick" he is visited by a burglar, introduces himself, and helps the burglar open a safe, and follows him to his quarters which is a den of a dangerous gang of crooks. This is where the action begins, which moves swiftly through the country and into a sheriff's home. Marmaduke and his pal, who really is not a crook, corral the crooks and the story is brought to a delightful finish.

"Rags to Riches" is a big drawing card for the younsters as well as the elder folks, as witnessed by the large crowds which attended the show Monday and Tuesday.

ROTARY MEMBERS PLAN CELEBRATION HONOR BIRTHDAY

ALL MEMBERS TO CELEBRATE 18th ANNIVERSARY BY CONTRIBUTING STATEMENTS AS TO CITIZENSHIP.

(By Associated Press)

Chicago.—With presidents, prime ministers, cheif justices, and heads of national legislative bodies throughout the world contributing brief statements of their ideas of the respensibilities of the individual citizen for the kind of government he gets, ninety thousand members of Rotary International began a world wide campaign Sunday for thorough understanding of these responsibilities as part of the celebration of the eighteenth anniversary of the founding of the first Rotary Club.

Harding Sends Message

President Harding, Speaker Gillett of the House of Representatives and Attorney General Daugherty are the authors of the texts of the citizenship messages Rotarians in the United States are carrying to the people of their communities. President Harding tells in his statement of the responsibilities of the individual citizen for the execution of the laws and declares no citizen can consider himself a good citizen who does not do all in his power to make careful selection from among the candidates for office and then vote fo rthe person he has deliberately selected—which, the President remarks parenthetically several millions of the citizens of the United States regularly fail to do by failing to vote at all.

Speaker Gillett also pleads for careful selection of the candidates for legislative office and states that the quack and the demagogue belong in the same category, in that they arouse sympathy by telling the victim of his real troubles and then offer their own remedy as the only panacea for the trouble.

Other Heads Speak

Attorney General Daugherty declares that constitutional government is not possible unless the individual citizen first acquaiints himself with and obeys the law himself.

The three basic statements of the principes of citizenship being used in the United States are duplicated in similar messages from the heads of the main branches of government in most of the twenty-odd countries in which Rotary Clubs have been established. The educational work the Rotarians are doing has nothing to do with partisan politics nor are the statements from the three distinguished government officials partisan. They are devoted entirely to the broad principle of the responsibilities of citizenship.

Rotary Founded 1906

The text mesages are being used in addresses to schools, industrial plants, civic organizations, etc., whatever the Rotarians think they can find a good audience. They are being broadcasted from thousands of radio stations and will form the subject of talks at every Rotary meeting during the week.

The first Rotary Club was organized in Chicago, February 23, 1906. There are now 1325 Rotary Clubs with a membership of approximately 90,000 in twenty-seven countries. The clubs are organized for the purpose of practicing and spreading the principles of service through the adoption of codes of ethical proctices in all lines of business and professions, through work among boys to prepare them for citizenship and through utilizing the service idea in aiding and abetting all worthy causes fo rthe general good of the communities in which the clubs are established.

Turkey To Hold An Economic Congress

Constantinople.—An economic congress of Turkey is to be held at Smyrna at a date next month yet to be named. The decree ordering the election of delegates has been issued from Angora. It provides that every Caza, or district shall have eight delegates, one to represent commerce, another artisans, another workmen, the fourth a chartered company of some kind, the fifth banking interests and the remaining three the agricultural community. The delegates are to be named by a commission over which shall preside the highest local civil official and to be composed of members of the local chamber of commerce, agriculture, arts and the president and members of the municipal council.

The congress will formulate recommendations for the economic organization of the country to be presented to the National Assembly.

Kemal Pasha will preside and make the opening address.

Farm School At Lindsey Success Despite Blizzard

The blizzard and snow which practically isolated Lindsey from the rest of the world last week did not prevent the holding of a successful part time agricultural school in the village by A. N. Howalt of the Wood County Agricultural school.

A number of home projects for the summer months were taken up by the boys and girls of the community, and interest seemed to be unusually high. Mr. Howalt conducted a poultry culling demonstration at the school, using some of Mrs. Walker's poultry. A cattle judging demonstration was also held, at which Jersey cows from Mr. Ketelle's herd were used. Students at the school also participated in the judging.

County Agricultural Agent R. A. Peterson was present at some of the school sessions, and gave talks on tuberculosis, and on cow testing association and club work.

Railroad traffic on the line between Babcock and Lindsey was entirely stopped by the storm, and not a train passed through the village during the whole week.

CLAIM SOFT COAL WILL PRODUCE GAS

LESSENING SUPPLY OF GASOLINE WILL BE SUPPLANTED IF SCIENTISTS CLAIM IS TRUE.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—The waing petroleum supply of the country may be supplemented to great extent, according to Charles R. Fettke, Associate Professor of Geology and Mineralogy at Carnegie Institute of Technology, by taking the enormous quantities of bituminous coal, now being burned in the raw state for steam raising purposes and domestic use, and subjecting it to low-temperature carbonization. Professor Fettke set forth this idea in the course of an address to the institute students.

A Superior Brand

This process, he said, will produce a fuel that is in many respects superior to raw coal; the smoke nuisance of cities will be abated, and valuable by-products will be recovered which will aid greatly in affecting a petroleum supply that is being rapidly depleted.

Professor Fettke emphasized the warning that the known reserves of petroleum are being so rapidly reduced that one of the problems to be faced within the next decade of two will be to find substitutes, in continually growing amounts, for the products now obtained from them.

Seek Other Fuels

"The distillation of oils from oil shales, another important source of supply, will be restricted to those regions where enormous quantities of the shales are found," said Professor Fettke. "Where bituminous coal is found in larger quantities than shale, it will be more economical to confine the business of oil distillation to coal.

"With the growing shortage of natural gas and anthracite coal and their consequent increase in price, other sources of domestic fuel must come more and more into use. One of these undoubtedly will be low-temperature coke. The low-temperature carbonization of coal in this respect will have the advantage of the oil shale industry. It will yield a valuable fuel as a residue, while the spent shale from the latter not only has little or no economic value, but means will have to be provided for its disposal.

Seek Repeal Of Law Requiring Vaccination

Madison, Wis.—Repeal of the compulsory vaccination law in effect throughout Wisconsin is asked in a bill brought into the legislature by Assemblyman John Peltier, Door county. The proposal is now introduced by title only but later it will be completed the Door county legislature said.

A similar proposal was sponsored by Assemplyman Peltier two years ago and was successful in rendering the opposition in the assembly, but was killed in the senate by a [illegible] margin.

When heard before a legislative committee the anti-vaccination bill always brings out a sharp [illegible] argument.

Sixteenth Century Statues.

Excavations carried on in the old cemetery of Courcelloents (Sarthe) have led to the discovery of two statues of the Sixteenth century. One represents a seigneur [illegible] armor. It is executed in stone and has suffered some mutilation. The other statue is in terra cotta and life size. It represents a woman kneeling at prayer, her hands joined, evidently a castellan's lady. The head is missing. In the Sixteenth century the castellany of Courcelloents belonged to Diane de Meridier, countess of Montsoreau.

About 50 per cent of the expense for building school houses are maintenance, hiring 2,500 teachers and furnishing books for the 65,000 children of the District of Columbia, is paid by the taxpayers of the Union.

GREECE HOPES NEW KING WILL KEEP OUT OF POLITICS

NEW HEAD OF GOVERNMENT WAS POPULAR AS A PRINCE; WILL FOLLOW FOOTSTEPS OF GRANDFATHER.

Athens.—George, the new King of Greece, has probably become convinced by this time that it depends on him and on him alone to keep his throne, and that he has nothing to fear from the republican scare. Foreign observers do not consider the Greek people ripe for a republican regime, and argue that the sooner the promoters of the republican idea realize that fact the better it will be for the country.

Politics Cause Ruin

George was popular as a prince, and there is no reason why he should not be popular as a king. As for Elizabeth, the Queen, her beautiful and kindly features and her dignified bearing have created an excellent first impression on the people. If the young sovereigns keep aloof from politics, it is felt, nothing will come to mar the happiness of their reign.

An ideal sovereign for Greece was the late George I, observant Greeks declare, and his grandson, George II, cannot do better than follow in his steps. George I never interested in internal politics any further than he was allowed to by the Constitution. Never during his long reign of forty years did he take unfair advantage of his royal prerogatives; never did he refuse to sign a decree approved by the cabinet.

Never Read Decrees

In this latter connection it is not uninteresting to chronicle a remark once made by the late King Alexander, the present king's brother, who succeeded Constantine after his first dethronement. Talking to a friend one day about the exercise of his royal duties, Alexander said:

"I never read decrees before signing them. My grandfather never read them, and he reigned for forty years. He would have reigned longer had he not been murdered. My father used to read the decrees, and he lost his throne. I shall do as my grandfather did."

America Is Friendly

King George had an amusing experience the other day. A retired American Admiral asked for an audience of his majesty, who willingly accorded it. On the day appointed, the admiral went to the palace and was immediately ushered into the king's study. His majesty wore an admiral's uniform for the occasion, and welcomed the American admiral with his good-natured affability. So simple was the king in his manner that the American admiral did not realize that he was in the royal presence; he believed that he was talking to his majesty's naval aid-de-camp. He condescendingly tapped him on the shoulder and congratulated him on having won his admiral's stripes so young.

"And are you now located at the Palace?" asked the visitor.

"Yes," said the king.

"And how long do you expect to remain here," was the next question.

"Until I am removed," was the answer.

Early Settles Planned World's Ideal City

Louisville, Ky—Picture a coterie of eighteenth century London gentlemen, fired with the spirit of the creator and pioneer, intently poring over a graphically illuminated chart of "the ideal city of the world," and visualizing o'er their mugs of ale the day when the virgin hill tops of that frontier region of the New World called Kentucky,—beyond the ragged edge of the lands as imitated by those recalcitrant colonists—should rise this wonder city—"Lystra!"

"The chief city of Kentucky," was the designation put to Lystra on a London map of 1794. But Lyst a never materialized.

Otis M. Mather, of Hodgenville, Ky., student of early Kentucky history, tells of the intended metropolis.

"The primeval forest still waves over the spot," Mr. Mather declared. "The site is located in the southeastern part of La Rue county, Kentucky, and the only thing that marks it is the postoffice and general store of Glenning, a little village several miles away."

Mahlstagl Hill, a landmark in the vicinity, was to be the spot on which part of the city was to be built there.

Lystra was to have [illegible] divided into [illegible] blocks, each block with [illegible] streets were to be laid [illegible] exclusive structures and [illegible] were located and placed on a map in London.

But the Englishmen never came to Kentucky. In the days that have elapsed since, too, the Bluegrass country to the east of Lystra's proposed location has been transformed into a prosperous region known as one of the garden commonwealths in the "New World."

Cattle Roundup To Draw Cattlemen From All Portions

Kansas City, Mo.—Cattlemen from all sections of the United States will gather here March 19-22 fo rthe sixth Annual Hereford Round-Up.

The event is an annual assembly of men engaged in producing the nation's beef supply. A 4-day auction of registered Herefords is the magnet which draws cattlemen here. It is held under the auspices of the American Hereford Cattle Breeders' Association.

In the Round-Up crowds will be sun-browned ranchers, South American ranchmen from Brazil and Uruguay, picturesque "cow men" from plains and mountains of the United States and rugged stockmen from corn belt farms.

In 1918, when the first sale was held, the hard-working auctioneers disposed of 292 Herefords in ten hours, or one every two minutes. Last year 471 head were sold with the same speed.

Spectacular sales have featured the auctions at past round-ups. Last year a Hereford bull calf raised by Bert Hemhill of Olathe, Kan., was bought for $1,025, by a South American ranchman. The top price paid at the 1920 sale was $7,600 for a sire, "Maples Lad 121st", bought by Thomas L. Cashman of Owatonna, Minn., from J. C. Robinson and Sons of Evansville, Wis.

WANTS EDUCAT'NAL BONUS ALTERNATIVE

NEW MEMBER OF BOARD ADVOCATES EDUCATION FOR VETERAN'S CHILDREN AS SUITABLE REWARD

Glendale, Cal.—An educational alternative to the national bonus is proposed by James T. Van Rensselaer of this city, who hos been asked to take the place of Major General Peter C. Harris as national chairman of the National Memorial University Association. Mr. Van Rensselaer states that he will decline the place unless a tentative plan os sufficiently endorsed to offer a suitable alternative to the bonus and proposes that the nation provide a complete education for all children of the World War service men or women.

To Establish Colleges

The proposal states:

"The attention has been called of the National Memorial University Association, and ofthe Chamber of Commerce of the United States, that o most fitting and proper educational memorial to the memory of the men who gave their lives to the country, during the world war, was to be found in the following suggested alternative to the bonus:

"That the federal government share equally with states, religious denominations, fraternal and other organizations and with individuals, and wherever possible, with institutions already functioning during the next ten or more years, in establishing self-supporting universities on the Oxford-Cambridge system of a score or more of colleges. These colleges shall be self-governing, and students are to be afforded the opportunity to work as well as to study, thus making provision for the higher education of all children, qualified, of all men and women who served in the army, navy and marine corps in the late war.

Self-Governed

"Each university, subject to a mutual agreement of all colleges concerned shall also be self-governing, and it is understood that the sole connection of the government with the matter will be the ossumption of one-half of the liability for a sum needed to carry out the purposes outlined, the entire amount to be underwritten by the state or other parties concerned, even the question of the payment of interests to be left open for further discussion.

"Briefly, the question is to persuede 4,000,000 ex-service men and women representing every section and every division of the country, and acting from the most enlightened self-interests, to join in one great national effort to create a highly educated American people in two or more generotions. For many men and women, who unselfishly served the country during the great war, fully beleive that education is light and light is from God, and that a movement has begun which, if it develops according to promise, will grow into the most impassioned enterprise so far undertaken by man."

Tribute to Memory

The National Memorial Association was formed for the purpose of obtaining the necessary funds and the establishment of National Memorial Universities as a tribute to the memory of the men who gave their lives to the country during the World War(in which special scholarships and privileges are to be extended to the children of these World War men and women.

LaCrosse, Wis.—"I have been recommending Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription to young expectant mothers for over 25 years, ever since I found by my own experience what a wonderful tonic and nervine Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is during this trying time. It gives renewed strength and it helps to ameliorate suffering. It's Neuritis!

Not Rheumatism

That sharp, stabbing pain in the upper arm, about the shoulder blade, in the nape of the neck, along the forearm or down the thigh and leg, is often Neuritis—not rheumatism.

If you have severe frontal headache with a feeling that something is twitching or pulling at the eyeballs—a dull, aching pain in the back accompanied by an occasional shooting pain in the side—numbness or tingling in the fingers or "stickers" of pain here and there, the chances are that your trouble is Neuritis.

No matter where your pain is located you can get prompt relief without taking bromides, narcotics or other dope. Apply Tysmol over the part that hurts, and you should soon be rid of the torture. Tysmol is guaranteed harmless. It helps to soothe and heal the weak, inflamed nerves.

Don't suffer any longer. Get a $1 package of Tysmol Absorbent from—Jean E. Daly Drug Co.

Open Drive For Northern Lakes Park Association

(By Associated Press)

Madison, Wis.—A drive to obtain 10,000 members to the Wisconsin lakes and Parks association, conducting a campaign for purchase of the Northern lakes parks, was announced today by A. A. Fisk, executive secretary of the organization. Funds obtained by this drive are to be used in preserving some of the native scenic spots of the state.

"The immediate task of the association is the acquisition of that tract of 8,000 acres of virgin forest in Price and Sawyer counties, known as the Northern Lakes park," a statement issued by Mr. Fisk says. "This area is traversed by eight miles of the beautiful Flambeau river, embraces a chain of a dozen lakes of surpassing charm thus combining in an unusud way, forest, lakes and river.

"The Wisconsin lakes and Parks association have accepted the acquisition of this property as their first responsibility. Every effort is being made by the association to secure this property for a state park during the current year."

"It is the plan of the association to make the work of the association self-sustaining through its membership. The only fair and equitable way to acquire and maintain such properties is by an appropriation made by government.

RAGS TO RICHES

Wesley Barry in "Rags to Riches" which is playing at the Palace Theater, was even better than in his previous picture "School Days." Here Wesley is the same befreckled, fun loving, mischevious youngster who delighted the local fans in "School Days."

The story is about young Marmaduke Clarke, only child of a wealthy family, who is given every luxury. But he longs for the vigorous life of boyhood. While reading the book "Diamond Dick" he is visited by a burglar, introduces himself, and helps the burglar open a safe, and follows him to his quarters which is a den of a dangerous gang of crooks. This is where the action begins, which moves swiftly through the country and into a sheriff's home. Marmaduke and his pal, who really is not a crook, corral the crooks and the story is brought to a delightful finish.

"Rags to Riches" is a big drawing card for the youngsters as well as the older folks, as witnessed by the large crowds which attended the show Monday and Tuesday.

DOINGS OF THE DUFFS — Some Clerks Are Too Flip — BY ALLMAN

"Val," murmured Velantrie and said no more.

"Velantrie!" screamed the girl, unconscious of the staring crowd, "Oh, Donald!"

Then her father's hand was on her shoulder, lifting her bodily a dozen other hands pulled the man away from her, and in the flurry that followed she found herself swung helplessly into her saddle, the reins put in her fingers.

"Ride," said John Hannon beside her, and she rode—but the earth and the heavens tumbled about her and twice in the silent journey when he did not deign to look back where danger certainly lurked in that bunch of men who followed Velantrie, the Boss of Paradise had to steady his daughter in her saddle.

Not one word did he ask her, then or after, about the whole affair, but put her in her own bed with his own hands and bade the women leave her alone, saying that she had had a turn and would be better soon.

CHAPTER XIX

The Black Rustler Rides

But the boss was mistaken. Val was not better soon. For three days she lay in her bed in the deep south room and scarcely knew day from darkness. Belle was terribly distressed and begged both her and John for explanation, but from the one she got only moans and silence from the other the brisk assurance that something must have happened to one of the girl's friends in Leandra to upset her.

Through Val's poor brain there wound a tumbling train of thoughts, any one of which was cause for despair.

But she was young and magnificently healthy—and she had the courage of her father's blood. Therefore she rose and came forth to confront the household with haggard eyes and cheeks that had thinned overnight, it seemed—to find the riders tense and silent, her mother sad with the old loneliness, for the boss was gone again. Once more had the far country called him and he had answered—answered on the hour, with his eagle eyes alight, his nostrils flaring.

And then Val came to Briston where he smoked alone in the patio under the stars and put a hand upon his shoulder. He dropped his cigaret and reached up to take the hand in his, to hold it between his two big palms in the confronting silence of perfect understanding.

And Val, heavy-eyed with tears, sank down on the bench beside him and put her forehead where the hand had rested on Briston's shoulder in the many years of his roving, but none that so pulled at his heart as this drooping black one.

Therefore he sat still and waited as the perfect friend waits. Presently, with a sigh, the girl said, "Tom,"

"Yes, Val."

"Will you—can you—find out—if Velantrie—"

"Don't need to find out. Perly was in town a day or two back—an' they said at Hunnewell's that his men picked him up an' took him off, swung across that horse of his with a man to help him ride an' that he was comin' round then. Old Doc Tackert happened to be there that day an' he looked him over before they left an' said he was not seriously hurt.

"Dios gracias!" whispered Val against his shoulder and Briston felt the whole tightening of her body, the seeming of new life and strength that tingled in her at his blessed words. She straightened up and pressed his hand and a great breath fluttered on her lips, a sigh of such relief as only words of life can bring. Thus love served its own in Briston's heart and made him glad at her joy.

So the rangeland drowsed. The Indian Summer passed and the first breath of frost came down upon the land, turning its sparse green to brown. The fall round-up loomed on the horizon—and the boss was still away.

Val was her old self, busy, efficient, save for a new gravity, a strong repression that was with her always. She went often to Refugio, hoping against hope for word of Velantrie, but Father Hillaire was helpless to give it her. The oblivion of the Border had swallowed him at last, and deep in his wise old heart the priest hoped that it would keep him. Dear as the boy was to him, the girl was dearer.

And far in the Blind Trail Hills poor Redstar ran his endless circle, called at the twilights, tore at the sapings and ate out his heart while far across the miles his beloved answered that unheard cry.

One by one the days went by and nothing new stirred in the cattle country. It was hard on driving time and Briston was wishing fervently for the boss.

The boys were overhauling the chuck-wagon, looking to saddles and ropes. The feeling of fall was in the air.

And then came a night, soft and dark with many stars in the early hours and with promise of a great white moon very late.

It was one of the few nights left in the lap of summer from which the warmth was spilling fast, and Val swung in the fringed hammock and talked in a low voice with the men. Briston smoked on his accussomed bench Siff and Rosy lounged on the hard dry earth, their slim young figures relaxed, while Dirk and Perly shared another hammock nearer to Bluewater.

Out by the bunk-house one of the vaqueros strummed an old guitar and sang a Spanish love-song in a voice like a harp. At a window of the darkened kitchens Fanita listened. Inside the abode house Belle Hannon, to whom all night was day, all day night, played softly her plaintive tunes. Never in her life could Val bear to hear such music in the dark.

She talked in broken sentences with Briston looking up at the stars. A thousand things molted through her mind and she gave them voice secure in the loving friendship that encompassed her.

"Tom," she said, "I asked dad once what constituted a good man—and he said 'a brave one, quick on the trigger.' What would you say?"

The foreman smoked silently a while. Then he knocked the ash from his cigaret.

"A good man, Val," he said, "is the man who deals squarely by his fellows an' has such honest love of humanity in his heart that he can help th' helpless, even at risk of his neck—such love for one woman that he can serve her all his life, either rewarded or unrewarded—a man who can sacrifice."

What gentle intent was in the speaker's mind only he knew, and he said no more. But Val had instant food for thought—as perhaps he had intended.

And then, sudden as a shot in the silence, came the voice of Perly form the other hammock.

"Tom," it cried sharply, "look there! an' there—an' yonder!"

With a spring the boy was on his feet a slim shape, straight in the dusk.

"God, God!" he cried again, "th' signal-fires! Boys—an' Kirther rides tonight!"

Without another word he flung himself from the patio and they heard the sound of his running feet as he went toward the corrals. True enough. From down at the south line there rose on the still dark a tall pillar of flame that was already answered from the southwest and the west.

Tom Briston stood tense, reading their messages.

"Raid," the one fire said, "at the flying Y."

He turned and looked west.

"We circle south," three red flares said.

Southeast two signals placed far apart told the rangeland, "We ride north," and beside the tall fire at the south two small ones close together bore Clendenning's faithful promise. "We'll close in on the Blind Trail pass from the south."

Thus was a net formed, a trap laid, and anything driving within its circle had best ride fast for the pass—for the horses of the plains would soon be out. And they were headed to beat, those horses that had run at Santa Leandra. Dollar, the gallant gray with the dapples on his hip—Silkskin, swift as waters flowing, black and wild—and all of Hannon's Red Brood that stamped in the home corrals—for the ranchers were pledged to this and all must go.

With one accord the cowboys followed Perly, shouting, snatching spur and bridle as they ran—the guitar out at the bunk-house ceased its strumming, stopped by a flattening hand on its strings—the vaqueros ran to the horses, too.

Only Briston was left for a moment standing in the patio. A gasp caught his ear—a deep, short breath that seemed to come from drowning lungs—and Val Hannon stood beside him, swaying on her feet like a drunkard.

"Tom," she gasped, still as if she could not breathe, "Tom—my friend—"

Bristol caught her tightly in the bend of his arms and looked into her face that shone white in the dark like a moon in fog.

"Yes, Val darling," he said.

"If—" Again that awful gasping breath.

The girl gripped her hands, steadied her swaying body with the old sweet strength. Then the words came a bit more strongly.

"If—they catch the—Black Rustler this night—don't—don't let—them—the Crag Oak—"

She wet her lips that were stiff and cold—reached out a groping hand and touched the gun that always hung at the foreman's belt.

"Shoot—him Tom," she said thickly, "straight—ah!"—it was sighing breath—"in — the— forehead —for me!"

"I will" said Briston and was gone.

CHAPTER XX

"GREATER LOVE HATH NO MAN"

Tragedy breathed upon the rangeland. Father Hillaire felt it, pacing in his dry garden.

Belle Hannon felt it andceased her plantive playing. She came, sure of foot in the darkness, to the east door that opened into the patio.

"Val!" she called.

English Oarsmen Train For Race Against Oxford

Cambridge—Twenty-two American students are rowing with the various college crews at Cambridge, but none of them has risen to a place on the Varsity squad from which eight men will be chosen to make the annual race against Oxford, March 24. The Americans will have their competitivespirits put to the test soon, however, when the annual Lent Bumping races take place.

Every afternoon nowadays the oarsmen on the Varsity squad dip their shell into the Cam, on whose narrow, twisting course they will practice until the latter part of February. Then the shell will be taken up to the more favorable water at Ely, and soon afterward to the upper Thames. The fortnight just before the race, the crew will be housed in the traditional quarters at Putney.

Last year, with a shell full of veterans, Cambridge won. It was the fourth successive victory over Oxford. This year only three old Blues are back to take places in the Cambridge boat, R. G. Ivory, K. N. Craig and T. B. A. Collet, all of Pembroke. There are few good heavyweights from whom to pick, but the lighter tryouts are quite promising. The undergraduates are confident of another triumph.

Colonel D. A. Wauchope, who stroked the '06 boat, is directing the daily workouts. Later on the coaching will ibe conducted by Peale, the old Rowing Blue. Although there will probably be many shifts in the seats before the race day, R. A. L. Balfour, a nephew of Lord Balfour, is almost sure to hold his job as coxwain. Balfour does not share the size of his uncle. He weighs only 125 pounds.

One hundred and sixty thousand carloads of last year's record potato crop are still in the hands of growers, a surplus unprecedented in the last nine years.

England To Let France And Germany Settle

(By Associated Press)

London, Feb. 20—Scant hope for British intervention at this time in the dispute between France and Germany is to be gleaned, according to Premier Bonar Law speaking in the House of Commons last night, when the premier concluded his attack on the joint liberal amendment.

He addressed his reply to a resolution calling upon the league of nations and the republic of America to investigate Germany's ability to pay the reparations. The resolution was lost by a vote of 305 to 196.

The prime minister, answering the points brought by David Lloyd George that it was up to Great Britain and America to save France from what he termed "a dangerous position," informed the House that intervention from the league, even as proposed in the amendment, would be considered by France as an act of hostility.

Asserting that the government policy was to keep French troops on the Rhine "as long as possible," and replying to Mr. Lloyd George's contention that America and Great Britain were called upon to act, Mr. Bonar Law said that he did not approve of the French step, but that opposition apparently could accomplish nothing.

Duesseldorf, Feb. 21—The burgomeister of Duesseldorf was expelled for disobeying French orders.

ROTARY MEMBERS PLAN CELEBRATION HONOR BIRTHDAY

ALL MEMBERS TO CELEBRATE 18th ANNIVERSARY, BY CONTRIBUTING STATEMENTS AS TO CITIZENSHIP.

(By Associated Press)

Chicago.—With presidents, prime ministers, cheif justices, and heads of national legislative bodies throughout the world contributing brief statements of their ideas of the respensibilities of the individual citizen for the kind of government he gets, ninety thousand members of Rotary International began a world wide campaign Sunday for thorough understanding of these responsibilities as part of the celebration of the eighteenth anniversary of the founding of the first Rotary Club.

Harding Sends Message

President Harding, Speaker Gillett of the House of Representatives and Attorney General Daugherty are the authors of the texts of the citizenship messages Rotarians in the United States are carrying to the people of their communities. President Harding tells in his statement of the responsibilities of the individual citizen for the execution of the laws and declares no citizen can consider himself a good citizen who does not do all in his power to make careful selection from among the candidates for office and then vote fo rthe person he has deliberately selected—which, the President remarks parenthetically several millions of the citizens of the United States regularly fail to do by failing to vote at all.

Speaker Gillett also pleads for careful selection of the candidates for legislative office and states that the quack and the demagogue belong in the same category, in that they arouse sympathy by telling the victim of his real troubles and then offer their own remedy as the only panacea for the trouble.

Other Heads Speak

Attorney General Daugherty declares that constitutional government is not possible unless the individual citizen first acquaints himself with and obeys the law himself.

The three basic statements of the principles of citizenship being used in the United States are duplicated in similar messages from the heads of the main branches of government in most of the twenty-odd countries in which Rotary Clubs have been established. The educational work the Rotarians are doing has nothing to do with partisan politics nor are the statements from the three distinguished government officials partisan. They are devoted entirely to the broad principle of the responsibilities of citizenship.

Rotary Founded 1906

The text mesages are being used in addresses to schools, industrial plants, civic organizations, etc., whatever the Rotarians think they can find a good audience. They are being broadcasted from thousands of radio stations and will form the subject of talks at every Rotary meeting during the week.

The first Rotary Club was organized in Chicago, February 23, 1906. There are now 1325 Rotary Clubs with a membership of approximately 90,000 in twenty-seven countries. The clubs are organized for the purpose of practicing and spreading the principles of service through the adoption of codes of ethical practices in all lines of business and professions, through work among boys to prepare them for citizenship and through utilizing the service idea in aiding and abetting all worthy causes fo rthe general good of the communities in which the clubs are established.

Turkey To Hold An Economic Congress

Constantinople.—An economic congress of Turkey is to be held at Smyrna at a date next month yet to be named. The decree ordering the election of delegates has been issued from Angora. It provides that every Caza, or district shall have eight delegates, one to represent commerce, another artisans, another workmen, the fourth a chartered company of some kind, the fifth banking interests and the remaining three the agricultural community. The delegates are to be named by a commission over which shall preside the highest local civil official and to be composed of members of the local chamber of commerce, agriculture, arts and the president and members of the municipal council.

The congress will formulate recommendations for the economic organization of the country to be presented to the National Assembly.

Kemal Pasha will preside and make the opening address.

VOLIVA FOUND GUILTY

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 21—Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of Zion City, Ill., was found guilty of criminal libel against the Reverend Thomas Nelson of Zion City, a former Zionist.

Women are now employed in 537 of the 572 occupations listed by the census. There are eight women aeronauts, 27 inventors, 41 technical engineers, 137 architects, 32 longshoremen and stevedores, 1495 coal-mine operatives, 168 laborers on road and street building and repairing.

Farm School At Lindsey Success Despite Blizzard

The blizzard and snow which practically isolated Lindsey from the rest of the world last week did not prevent the holding of a succesful part time agricultural school in the village by A. N. Howalt of the Wood County Agricultural school.

A number of home projects for the summer months were taken up by the boys and girls of the community, and interest seemed to be unusually high. Mr. Howalt conducted a poultry culling demonstration at the school, using some of Mrs. Walter's poultry. A cattle judging demonstration was also held, at which Jersey cows from Mr. Ketelle's herd were used. Students at the school also participated in the judging.

County Agricultural Agent R. A. Peterson was present at some of the school sessions, and gave talks on tuberculosis, and on cow testing association and club work.

Railroad traffic on the line between Babcock and Lindsey was entirely stopped by the storm, and not a train passed through the village during the whole week.

CLAIM SOFT COAL WILL PRODUCE GAS

LESSENING SUPPLY OF GASOLINE WILL BE SUPPLANTED IF SCIENTISTS CLAIM IS TRUE.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—The waing petroleum supply of the country may be supplemented to great extent, according to Charles R. Fettke, Associate Professor of Geology and Mineralogy at Carnegie Institute of Technology, by taking the enormous quantities of bituminous coal, now being burned in the raw state for steam raising purposes and domestic use, and subjecting it to low-temperature carbonization. Professor Fettke set forth this idea in the course of an address to the institute students.

A Superior Brand

This process, he said, will produce a fuel that is in many respects superior to raw coal; the smoke nuisance of cities will be abated, and valuable by-products will be recovered which will aid greatly in affecting a petroleum supply that is being rapidly depleted.

Professor Fettke emphasized the warning that the known reserves of petroleum are being so rapidly reduced that one of the problems to be faced within the next decade of two will be to find substitutes, in continually growing amounts, for the products now obtained from them.

Seek Other Fuels

"The distillation of oils from oil shales, another important source of supply, will be restricted to those regions where enormous quantities of the shales are found," shid Professor Fettke. "Where bituminous coal is found in larger quantities than shale, it will be more economical to confine the business of oil distillation to coal.

"With the growing shortage of natural gas and anthracite coal and their consequent increase in price, other sources of domestic fuel must come more and more into use. One of these undoubtedly will be low-temperature coke. The low-temperature carbonization of coal in this respect will have the advantage of the oil shale industry. It will yield a valuable fuel as a residue, while the spent shale from the latter not only has little or no economic value, but means will have to be provided for its disposal.

Seek Repeal Of Law Requiring Vaccination

Madison, Wis.—Repeal of the compulsory vaccination law in effect throughout Wisconsin is asked in a bill brought into the legislature by Assemblyman John Peltier, Door county. The proposal is now introduced by title only but later will be completed the Door county legislature said.

A similar proposal was sponsored by Assemplyman Peltier two years ago and was successful in weathering the opposition in the assembly. It was killed in the senate by a narrow margin.

When heard before a legislative committee the anti-vaccination bill always brings out a sharply partisan argument.

Sixteenth Century Statues.

Excavations carried on in the old cemetery of Coureebeuefs (Sarthe) have led to the discovery of two statues of the Sixteenth century. One represents a seigneur armed cap-a-pie. It is executed in stone and has suffered some mutilation. The other statue is in terra cotta and lifesize. It represents a woman kneeling at prayer, her hands joined, evidently a castellan's lady. The head is missing. In the Sixteenth century the castellany of Coureebeuefs belonged to Diane de Meridor, countess of Montsoreau.

About 50 per cent of the expense for building school houses and maintenance, hiring 2,500 teachers and furnishing books for the 66,000 children of the District of Columbia, is paid by the taxpayers of the Union.

GREECE HOPES NEW KING WILL KEEP OUT OF POLITICS

NEW HEAD OF GOVERNMENT WAS POPULAR AS A PRINCE; WILL FOLLOW FOOTSTEPS OF GRANDFATHER.

Athens.—George, the new King of Greece, has probably become convinced by this time that it depends on him and on him alone to keep his throne, and that he has nothing to fear from the republican scare. Foreign observers do not consider the Greek people ripe for a republican regime, and argue that the sooner the promoters of the republican idea realize that fact the better it will be for the Country.

Politics Cause Ruin

George was popular as a prince, and there is no reason why he should not be popular as a king. As for Elizabeth, the Queen, her beautiful and kindly features and her dignified bearing have created an excellent first impression on the people. If the young sovereigns keep aloof from politics, it is felt, nothing will come to mar the happiness of their reign.

An ideal sovereign for Greece was the late George I, observant Greeks declare, and his grandson, George II, cannot do better than follow in his steps. George I never interested in internal politics any further than he was allowed to by the Constitution. Never during his long reign of forty years did he take unfair advantage of his royal prerogatives; never did he refuse to sign a decree approved by the cabinet.

Never Read Decrees

In this latter connection it is not uninteresting to chronicle a remark once made by the late King Alexander, the present king's brother, who succeeded Constantine after his first dethronement. Talking to a friend one day about the exercise of his royal duties, Alexander said:

"I never read decrees before signing them. My grandfather never read them, and he reigned for forty years. He would have reigned longer had he not been murdered. My father used to read the decrees, and he lost his throne. I shall do as my grandfather did."

America Is Friendly

King George had an amusing experience the other day. A retired American Admiral asked for an audience of his majesty, who willingly accorded it. On the day appointed, the admiral went to the palace and was immediately ushered into the king's study. His majesty wore an admiral's uniform for the occasion, and welcomed the American admiral with his good-natured affability. So simple was the king in his manner that the American admiral did not realize that he was in the royal presence; he believed that he was talking to his majesty's naval aid-de-camp. He condescendingly tapped him on the shoulder and congratulated him on having won his admiral's stripes so young.

"And are you now located at the Palace?" asked the visitor.

"Yes," said the king.

"And how long do you expect to remain here," was the next question.

"Until I am removed," was the answer.

Early Settles Planned World's Ideal City

Louisville, Ky—Picture a coterie of eighteenth century London gentlemen, fired with the spirit of the creator and pioneer, intently poring over a graphically illuminated chart of "the ideal city of the world," and visualizing o'er their mugs of ale the day when the virgin hill tops of that frontier region of the New World called Kentucky,—beyond the raggedest edge of the lands assimilated by those recalcitrant colonists—should rise this wonder city,—"Lystra!"

"The chief city of Kentucky," was the designation put to Lystra on a London map of 1794. But Lystra never materialized.

Otis M. Mather, of Hodgenville, Ky., student of early Kentucky history, tells of the intended metropolis.

"The primeval forest still waves over the spot," Mr. Mather declared. "The site is located in the extreme eastern part of La Rue county, Kentucky, and the only thing that marks it is the postoffice and general store of Glennings, al itlle village several miles away."

Moldraugh Hill, a landmark in the virinity, was to be the approximate center of the city and is still there.

Lystra was to cover 15,000 square acres, divided into twenty-five blocks, each block with its individual park. Streets were to be 100 feet wide, and visionary structures and improvements were located and planned—on a map in London.

But the Englishmen never came to Kentucky. In the days that have elapsed since, however, the Bluegrass country to the east of Lystra's proposed location has been transformed into a prosperous region known as one of the richest communities in the "New World."

Cattle Roundup To Draw Cattlemen From All Portions

Kansas City, Mo.—Cattlemen from all sections of the United States will gather here March 19-22 fo rthe sixth Annual Hereford Round-Up.

The event is an annual assembly of men engaged in producing the nation's beef supply. A 4-day auction of registered Herefords is the magnet which draws cattlemen here. It is held under the auspices of the American Hereford Cattle Breeders' Association.

In the Round-Up crowds will be sun-browned ranchers, South American ranchmen from Brazil and Uruaguay, picturesque "cow men" from plains and mountains of the United States and rugged stockmen from corn belt farms.

In 1918, whe nthe first sale was held, the hard-working auctioneers disposed of 292 Herefords in ten hours, or one every two minutes. Last year, 471 head were sold with the same speed.

Spetacular sales have featured the auctions at past round-ups. Last year a Hereford bull calf raised by Bert Hemhill of Olathe, Kan., was bought for $1,025, by a South American ranchman. The top price paid at the 1920 sale was $7,600 for a sire, "Maples Lad 121st", bought by Thomas L. Cashman of Owatonna, Minn., from J. C. Robinson and Sons of Evansville, Wis.

WANTS EDUCAT'NAL BONUS ALTERNATIVE

NEW MEMBER OF BOARD ADVOCATES EDUCATION FOR VETERAN'S CHILDREN AS SUITABLE REWARD

Glendale, Cal.—An educational alternative to the national bonus is proposed by James T. Van Rensselaer of this city, who hos been asked to take the place of Major General Peter C. Harris as national chairman of the National Memorial University Association, Mr. Van Rensselaer states that he will decline the place unless a tentative plan os sufficiently endorsed to offer a suitable alternative to the bonus and proposes that the nation provide a complete education for all children of the World War service men or women.

To Establish Colleges

The proposal states:

"The attention has been called of the National Memorial University Association, and ofthe Chamber of Commerce of the United States, that o most fitting and proper educational memorial to the memory of the men who gave their lives to the country, during the world war, was to be found in the following suggested alternative to the bonus:

"That the federal government share equally with states, religious denominations, fraternal and other organizations and with individuals, and wherever possible, with institutions already functioning during the next ten or more years, in establishing self-supporting universities on the Oxford-Cambridge system of a score or more of colleges. These colleges shall be self-governing, and students are to be afforded the opportunity to work as well as to study, thus making provision for the higher education of all children, qualified, of all men and women who served in the army, novy and marine corps in the late war.

Self-Governed

"Each university, subject to a mutual agreement of all colleges concerned shall also be self-governing, and it is understood that the sole connection of the government with the matter will be the ossumption of one-half of the liability for a sum needed to carry out the purposes outlined, the entire amount to be underwritten by the state or other parties concerned, even the question of the payment of interests to be left open for further discussion.

"Briefly, the question is to persuede 4,000,000 ex-service men and women representing every section and every division of the country, and acting from the most enlightened self-interests, to join in one great national effort to create a highly educated American people in two or more generations. For many men and women, who unselfishly served the country during the great war, fully beleive that education is light and light is from God, and that a movement has begun which, if it develops according to promise, will grow into the most impassioned enterprise so far undertaken by man."

Tribute to Memory

The National Memorial Association was formed for the purpose of obtaining the necessary funds and the establishment of National Memorial Universities as a tribute to the memory of the men who gave their lives to the country during the World War(in which special scholarships and privileges are to be extended to the children of these World War men and women.

The National committee of the association is composed of 50 members, one at large, one from the District of Columbio and one from each state in the Union, and numbers among it members some of the leading citizens of the states, including a number of governors, former governors, members of Congress and financiers.

See where the sun with face of inscrutable splendor, goes swimming through the day; see where the soft and silver moon, with fleets of stars, goes swimming through the night. What an elegant show! There they shine and move, perhaps wonderfully achieve—hosts upon hosts; but there is no celebrating pomp or sounds, only an all-embracing pomp of silence—not a whisper, not a rustle, through all the vasty dome. Reports Show Riverview Hospital Ass'n Is In Good Condition Now

The conditions at Riverview Hospital this year are considerably better and the institution has been able to make a showing during the past year, which is regarded as the best in the history of the institution. At the meeting of the association held Tuesday afternoon in the committee room of the Elks Club it was shown that the association was completely out of debt, holds title to property and equipment valued at $65,000 and that the physical equipment was in good condition. The statistical and financial reports of the association published elsewhere in this issue show the number and nature of the operations and the financial condition of the hospital.

Managment Reports

Dr. J. K. Goodrich, manager of the hospital, to whom much of the credit for the good showing of last year is due, reported the conditions in a frank statement read to those attending the meeting on Tuesday. He paid tribute to the work of Miss Ione Lavake, superintendent who has efficiently handled the hospital and the nurses training school. The latter being a very important part of the hospital. Dr. Goodrich also expressed the appreciation of the hospital and the association in the generosity of the people of Wisconsin Rapids, Port Edwards, Nekoosa and Biron and of the rural communities for their generous donations of funds and foodstuffs. He said that the hospital, a non-profit institution, spent about $27,000 annually for maintenance and the largest share of it was spent in this city. He explained that businessmen who had generously given funds to the hospital were receiving as much of the business as can be done here but that there were hospital specialties which are necessarily purchased out of the city.

Letters of Praise

Several letters praising the service rendered by the institution, the courtesy, the generosity and the charity of the hospital were read.

Miss Lavake read a report of the nurses course which showed that it was being scholarly and scientifically handled.

The following directors were chosen: G. W. Mead, Rev. William Reding, Rev. C. A. Meilicke, Otto Siewert, Henry C. Demitz, O. R. Roenius, and Dr. J. K. Goodrich. The directors chose the following officers: O. R. Roenius, president; H. C. Demitz, sec'y. and treas.; Dr. J. K. Goodrich, manager and Miss Ione Lavake, superintendent.

The meeting was not largely attended, unfortunately. The reports and the progress made no doubt will be of vital interest to the community, which has backed up the hospital and the people who realize that it is a valuable asset to the community.

Reorganize Test Association At Rudolph Monday

At a well attended meeting of the Rudolph Cow Testing association Monday afternoon the association was reorganized with virtually the same membership as during 1922. Practically no members dropped out, and three new members were admitted.

The old officers of the association were reelected, and Wm. Youkman, who has served as tester for several years, was reengaged and was praised for his excellent work. Officers of the association are: C. Van Lith, president; Joe Van de Loop, vice-president; Wm. Peters, secretary and treasurer.

County Agents R. A. Peterson of Wood county and H. R. Noble of Portage county were present and gave short talks. Mr. Peterson told of the dairy products advertising campaign recently inaugurated at Madison, and Mr. Noble emphasized the value of test association work, particularly as it relates to efficient feeding.

The French Government recently gave 250 acres of land at Vimy Ridge to the people of Canada. A gigantic war memorial is to be erected by Canada on this ground commemorating the exploits of Canadian soldiers in the World War.

As a result of a will left by La Verne W. Noyes, a prominent Chicagoan who died in 1919, 400 men and women who served in the World War will be given scholarships in the best institutions in America. Thirty scholarships for nurses are to be awarded.

The cost of the World War to Germany is estimated at $49,362,000,000.

UNDERTAKERS PLAN STATE CONVENTION

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF STATE BODY MEETS HERE TO DISCUSS PLANS FOR CONVENTION IN THIS CITY

J. Wendler, Milwaukee, president of the Wisconsin State Funeral Director's Association; Arthur Drett, Milwaukee, past president; Robert Kroos, Sheboygan, Sec'y; A. Frantzen, Madison, treas., and Peter Christianson and F. A. Schmeltzer, representatives of the traveling men's association who sell products to the members of the Wisconsin State Funeral Director's Association, are meeting today with J. R. Ragan in regard to the laying of plans for the state convention of the body which will be held in Wisconsin Rapids this summer.

Meet July 24-25

Although nothing definite was accomplished up to the hour of going to press it is expected that the convention this year will be the largest ever held by that body and will be a decided success from every point of view.

As planned now the business sessions of the association will be held July 24 and 25 and examinations will be given the following two days. The exact program has not been decided upon, but it is expected that it will conform with any ideas as to entertainment that Mr. Ragan or other business men of the city have in view.

Expects Success

Mr. Kroos, in speaking of the coming convention, said, "I firmly believe that the convention this year is going to be a decided success. In our meeting today Mr. Ragan extended every courtesy and attention and I wish to thank him on behalf of the association for the work he has accomplished towards making next summer's convention the success that it is destined to be."

"Val," murmured Velantrie and said no more.

"Velantrie!" screamed the girl, unconscious of the staring crowd, "Oh, Donald!"

Then her father's hand was on her shoulder, lifting her bodily a dozen other hands pulled the man away from her, and in the flurry that followed she found herself swung helplessly into her saddle, the reins put in her fingers.

"Ride," said John Hannon beside her, and she rode—but the earth and the heavens tumbled about her and twice in the silent journey when he did not deign to look back where danger certainly lurked in that bunch of men who followed Velantrie, the Boss of Paradise had to steady his daughter in her saddle.

Not one word did he ask her, then or after, about the whole affair, but put her in her own bed with his own hands and bade the women leave her alone, saying that she had had a turn and would be better soon.

CHAPTER XIX

The Black Rustler Rides

But the boss was mistaken. Val was not better soon. For three days she lay in her bed in the deep south room and scarcely knew day from darkness. Belle was terribly distressed and begged both her and John for explanation, but from the one she got only moans and silence from the other the brisk assurance that something must have happened to one of the girl's friends in Leandra to upset her.

Through Val's poor brain there wound a tumbling train of thoughts, any one of which was cause for despair.

But she was young and magnificently healthy—and she had the courage of her father's blood. Therefore she rose and came forth to confront the household with haggard eyes and cheeks that had thinned overnight, it seemed—to find the riders tense and silent, her mother sad with the old loneliness, for the boss was gone again. Once more had the far country called him and he had answered—answered on the hour, with his eagle eyes alight, his nostrils flaring.

And then Val came to Briston where he smoked alone in the patio under the stars and put a hand upon his shoulder. He dropped his cigaret and reached up to take the hand in his, to hold it between his two big palms in the confronting silence of perfect understanding.

And Val, heavy-eyed with tears, sank down on the bench beside him and put her forehead where the hand had rested on Briston's shoulder in the many years of his roving, but none that so pulled at his heart as this drooping black one.

Therefore he sat still and waited as the perfect friend waits. Presently, with a sigh, the girl said, "Tom,"

"Yes, Val."

"Will you—can you—find out—if Velantrie—"

"Don't need to find out. Perly was in town a day or two back—an' they said at Hunnewell's that his men picked him up an' took him off, swung across that horse of his with a man to help him ride an' that he was comin' round then. Old Doc Tackert happened to be there that day an' he looked him over before they left an' said he was not seriously hurt.

"Dios gracias!" whispered Val against his shoulder and Briston felt the whole tightening of her body, the seeming of new life and strength that tingled in her at his blessed words. She straightened up and pressed his hand and a great breath fluttered on her lips, a sigh of such relief as only words of life can bring. Thus love served its own in Briston's heart and made him glad at her joy.

So the rangeland drowsed. The Indian Summer passed and the first breath of frost came down upon the land, turning its sparse green to brown. The fall round-up loomed on the horizon—and the boss was still away.

Val was her old self, busy, efficient, save for a new gravity, a strong repression that was with her always. She went often to Refugio, hoping against hope for word of Velantrie, but Father Hillaire was helpless to give it her. The oblivion of the Border had swallowed him at last, and deep in his wise old heart the priest hoped that it would keep him. Dear as the boy was to him, the girl was dearer.

And far in the Blind Trail Hills poor Redstar ran his endless circle, called at the twilights, tore at the capings and ate out his heart while far across the miles his beloved answered that unheard cry.

One by one the days went by and nothing new stirred in the cattle country. It was hard on driving time and Briston was wishing fervently for the boss.

The boys were overhauling the chuck-wagon, looking to saddles and ropes. The feeling of fall was in the air.

And then came a night, soft and dark with many stars in the early hours and with promise of a great white moon very late.

It was one of the few nights left in the lap of summer from which the warmth was spilling fast, and Val swung in the fringed hammock and talked in a low voice with the men. Briston smoked on his accustomed bench Siff and Rosy lounged on the hard dry earth, their slim young figures relaxed, while Dirk and Perly shared another hammock nearer to Bluewater.

Out by the bunk-house one of the vaqueros strummed an old guitar and sung a Spanish love-song in a voice like a harp. At a window of the darkened kitchens Fanita listened. Inside the abode house Belle Hannon, to whom all night was day, all day night, played softly her plaintive tunes. Never in her life could Val bear to hear such music in the dark.

She talked in broken sentences with Briston looking up at the stars. A thousand things molled through her mind and she gave them voice secure in the loving friendship that encompassed her.

"Tom," she said, "I asked dad once what constituted a good man—and he said 'a brave one, quick on the trigger.' What would you say?"

The foreman smoked silently a while. Then he knocked the ash from his cigaret.

"A good man, Val," he said, "is the man who deals squarely by his fellows an' has such honest love of humanity in his heart that he can help th' helpless, even at risk of his neck—such love for one woman that he can serve her all his life, either rewarded or unrewarded—a man who can sacrifice."

What gentle intent was in the speaker's mind only he knew, and he said no more. But Val had instant food for thought—as perhaps he had intended.

And then, sudden as a shot in the silence, came the voice of Perly form the other hammock.

"Tom," it cried sharply, "look there! an' there—an' yonder!"

With a spring the boy was on his feet a slim shape, straight in the dusk.

"God God!" he cried again, "th' signal-fires! Boys—th' Rustler rides tonight!"

Without another word he flung himself from the patio and they heard the sound of his running feet as he went toward the corrals. True enough. From down at the south line there rose on the still dark a tall pillar of flame that was already answered from the southwest and the west.

Tom Briston stood tense, reading their messages.

"Raid," the one fire said, "at the flying Y."

He turned and looked west.

"We circle south," three red flares said.

Southeast two signals placed far apart told the rangeland, "We ride north," and beside the tall fire at the south two small ones close together bore Clendenning's faithful promise. "We'll close in on the Blind Trail pass from the south."

Thus was a net formed, a trap laid, and anything driving within its circle had best ride fast for the pass—for the horses of the plains would soon be out. And they were headed to beat, those horses that had run at Santa Leandra. Dollar, the gallant gray with the dapples on his hip—Silkskin, swift as waters flowing, black and wild—and all of Hannon's Red Brood that stamped in the home corrals—for the ranchers were pledged to this and all must go.

With one accord the cowboys followed Perly, shouting, snatching spur and bridle as they ran—the guitar out at the bunk-house ceased its strumming, stopped by a flattening hand on its strings—the vaqueros ran to the horses, too.

Only Briston was left for a moment standing in the patio. A gasp caught his ear—a deep, short breath that seemed to come from drowning lungs—and Val Hannon stood beside him, swaying on her feet like a drunkard.

"Tom," she gasped, still as if she could not breathe, "Tom—my friend—"

Bristol caught her tightly in the bend of his arms and looked into her face that shone white in the dark like a moon in fog.

"Yes, Val darling," he said.

"If—" Again that awful gasping breath.

The girl gripped her hands, steadied her swaying body with the old sweet strength. Then the words came a bit more strongly.

"If—they catch the—Black Rustler this night—don't—don't let—them—the Crag Oak—"

She wet her lips that were stiff and cold—reached out a groping hand and touched the gun that always hung at the foreman's belt.

"Shoot—him Tom," she said thickly, "straight—ah!"—it was sighing breath—"in — the— forehead —for me!"

"I will" said Briston and was gone.

CHAPTER XX

"GREATER LOVE HATH NO MAN"

Tragedy breathed upon the rangeland. Father Hillaire felt it, pacing in his dry garden.

Beele Hannon felt it andceased her plantive playing. She came, sure of foot in the darkness, to the east door that opened into the patio.

"Val!" she called.

English Oarsmen Train For Race Against Oxford

Cambridge—Twenty-two American students are rowing with the various college crews at Cambridge, but none of them has risen to a place on the Varsity squad from which eight men will be chosen to make the annual race against Oxford, March 24. The Americans will have their competitivespirits put to the test soon, however, when the annual Lent Bumping races take place.

Every afternoon nowadays the oarsmen on the Varsity squad dip their shell into the Cam, on whose narrow, twisting course they will practice until the latter part of February. Then the shell will be taken up to the more favorable water at Ely, and soon afterward to the upper Thames. The fortnight just before the race, the crew will be housed in the traditional quarters at Putney.

Last year, with a shell full of veterans, Cambridge won. It was the fourth successive victory over Oxford. This year only three old Blues are back to take places in the Cambridge boat, B. G. Ivory, K. N. Craig and T. D. A. Collet, all of Pembroke. There are few good heavyweights from whom to pick, but the lighter tryouts are quite promising. The undergraduates are confident of another triumph.

Colonel D. A. Wauchope, who stroked the '06 boat, is directing the daily workouts. Later on the coaching wil lbe conducted by Peale, the old Rowing Blue. Although there will probably be many shifts in the seats before the race day, R. A. L. Balfour, a nephew of Lord Balfour, is almost sure to hold his job as coxwain. Balfour does not share the size of his uncle. He weighs only 125 pounds.

One hundred and sixty thousand carloads of last year's record potato crop are still in the hands of growers, a surplus unprecedented in the last nine years.

England To Let France And Germany Settle

(By Associated Press)

London, Feb. 20—Scant hope for British intervention at this time in the dispute between France and Germany is to be gleaned, according to Premier Bonar Law speaking in the House of Commons last night, when the premier concluded his attack on the joint liberal amendment.

He addressed his reply to a resolution calling upon the league of nations and the republic of America to investigate Germany's ability to pay the reparations. The resolution was lost by a vote of 305 to 196.

The prime minister, answering the points brought by David Lloyd George that it was up to Great Britain and America to save France from what he termed "a dangerous position," informed the House that intervention from the league, even as proposed in the amendment, would be considered by France as an act of hostility.

Asserting that the government policy was to keep French troops on the Rhine "as long as possible," and replying to Mr. Lloyd George's contention that America and Great Britain were called upon to act, Mr. Bonar Law said that he did not approve of the French step, but that opposition apparently could accomplish nothing.

Duesseldorf, Feb. 21—The burgomeister of Duesseldorf was expelled for disobeying French orders.

TOMAHAWK TEAM HERE EXPECTING TO COP VICTORY

SPEEDY AGGREGATION FROM THE NORTH CANNOT SEE DEFEAT; LOCALS EXPECT TO END LOSING STREAK

Tomahawk high school basketers arrived in this city this noon with the secret purpose of going to Lincoln five an artistic ending to their game that will be pulled to-night at the Lincoln gym.

With one of the fastest teams that the northern city has ever turned out it is confidently expected by the visitors that they will come out victorious. They base their claims on the results of games played with teams that have played the Rapids and claim that their past record entitles them to be favorite for tonight's game.

Locals Going Good

Not saying anything, but working like Trojans, the Lincoln quintette has been diligently practicing the past week and are confident that they will emerge from their losing streak. According to Coach Ritchay the team has been showing marked improvement in their offensive play, a department wherein they have been deplorably weak up until this time. The improvement noted in the game against Wausau, when, although they were beaten, they put up a sterling article of ball and really kept the Wausau five on their toes every minute, has served to give the players confidence and they are determined to end their string of defeats tonight.

Ryan Probable Choice For Badger Coaching Job

Jack Ryan is to be the next coach of Wisconsin football destinies.

Official announcement of his appointment has not been made but those close to the situation at Madison claim his name will be the one announced when the regents meet March 7 to make known their selection.

"Ryan is to get the place and while he probably has not been signed, it's a ten to one shot that he will be selected," said a prominent Wisconsin alumnus on Tuesday. Ryan himself refuses to talk. He admits that he would like to get the berth, but claims he knows nothing more than what he has read in the newspapers.

Tom Jones, athletic director of the university who was in Milwaukee on Monday, admitted that the former Hilltop coach was being considered. Jones denied, however, that selection had been made and said that Pat Page, coach at Butler; Hod Ofstie, former Ripon coach, and Harry Hughes of Colorado were under consideration.

Selection of Ryan would be a popular move with Cardinals alumni in Milwaukee. He has made hundreds of friends here and those who do not know him personally know of his remarkable success as a coach both here and at St. Thomas, where his football teams went undefeated for five successive years.

Ryan at present is head backfield coach at Dartmouth but in the event of his getting the Madison berth Dartmouth is willing to release him from his contract.

Holiday In Recognition Of Public Benefactors

Madison, Wis.—To encourage the donations from wealthy citizens to public purposes, Senator Anton Kuckuk has offered a bill in the legislature which would make Feb. 12 a holiday in which each community could pay tribute to the men who had done some good for the community as a whole. The claim is made that many men make gifts to parks and public buildings, but that there is no recognition in a public way. The Kuckuk bill would supply this.

The fact that Feb. 12 is Lincoln's birthday was selected by Senator Kuckuk as a fitting for such exercises. There are indications that [illegible] be enacted into law.

TELEPHONE CALLS AVERAGE 176 A PERSON IN YEAR

STATISTICS SHOW THAT WIRES USED WOULD ENCIRCLE GLOBE AT EQUATOR 1,183 TIMES

Chicago—If every man, woman and child in the United States did his share of talking over the telephone last year, each would be entitled to 176 completed calls, according to figures compiled by the Illinois Committee on Public Utility Information.

Plenty of Wire

The committee reports twenty billion telephone conversations in 1922 over the 14,200,000 telephones then in use. To handle the business 305,000 persons were employed by the 53,100 telephone companies, and, the committee impressively adds, the 20,701,000 miles of wire used would encircle the globe 1,183 times at the equator. In other words there is enough of the wire to run sixty-two double wire telephone circuits from the earth to the moon, at its mean distance from the earth, and still have 90,000 miles or so left over for other purposes.

Since Dr. Alexander Graham Bell invented the telephone in 1876 the industry had grown with such amazing speed, that the United States with only a sixteenth of the world's population, now possesses two-thirds of all the telephones in use.

Phones Increase

The 15,600,000 telephone poles in use says the statistician would build a railroad trestle thirty feet high from Chicago to Buenos Aires, while the additions and replacements each year would carry a telephone line two-thirds the way around the earth.

In 1900, he reports, there was one telephone for every 90 persons; in 1905 one for each 34; in 1910 one to each 16; in 1915 one to each 11, and in 1921 one to each eight.

Next to Americans the people of Denmark are the most telephonically talkative on earth. In 1920, when Americans averaged 160 conversations per annum for each human, woman and child, the Danes were second with 115. Norway and Sweden were third and fourth, both averaging about 100 conversations per inhabitant. The best the Germans, in fifth place could do, was 52. The Netherlands and Australia were between 40 and 50. Switzerland averaged 30; Great Britain 20, France 12; Belgium ten and Italy eight. The investment in telephone properties in the United States totals $1,750,000,000.

Urge Higher Penalty For Delinquent Drainage Taxes

Madison, Wis.—Raising the penalty for delinquent drainage taxes from 10 percent, the present rate, to 15 per cent, the same as for general taxes, is urged as "desirable legislation" in connection with increasing drained areas of Wisconsin land by the state department of engineering in a quarterly report made public today.

Charter specifications as to the power of drainage boards to let contracts; allowing bonds to run for 20 years with only interest payments for the first five years; county treasurers required to allow interest on daily balances to the credit of the project; giving drainage boards the same right to enter navigable waters as the district law now gives it commissioners; provision for a means of dismissing a drainage proceeding if after the court has organized the project it should be advisable to dismiss it are among the things sought in a legislative way to aid in drying up the state's wet lands.

Reports Show Riverview Hospital Ass'n Is In Good Condition Now

The conditions at Riverview Hospital this year are considerably better and the institution has been able to make a showing during the past year, which is regarded as the best in the history of the institution. At the meeting of the association held Tuesday afternoon in the committee room of the Elks Club it was shown that the association was completely out of debt, holds title to property and equipment valued at $65,000 and that the physical equipment was in good condition. The statistical and financial reports of the association published elsewhere in this issue show the number and nature of the operations and the financial condition of the hospital.

Managment Reports

Dr. J. K. Goodrich, manager of the hospital, to whom much of the credit for the good showing of last year is due, reported the conditions in a frank statement read to those attending the meeting on Tuesday. He paid tribute to the work of Miss Ione Lavake, superintendent who has efficiently handled the hospital and the nurses training school. The latter being a very important part of the hospital. Dr. Goodrich also expressed the appreciation of the hospital and the association in the generosity of the people of Wisconsin Rapids, Port Edwards, Nekoosa and Biron and of the rural communities for their generous donations of funds and foodstuffs. He said that the hospital, a non-profit institution, spent about $27,000 annually for maintenance and the largest share of it was spent in this city. He explained that businessmen who had generously given funds to the hospital were receiving as much of the business as can be done here but that there were hospital specialties which are necessarily purchased out of the city.

Letters of Praise

Several letters praising the service rendered by the institution, the courtesy, the generosity and the charity of the hospital were read.

Miss Lavake read a report of the nurses course which showed that it was being scholarly and scientifically handled.

The following directors were chosen: G. W. Mead, Rev. William Reding, Rev. C. A. Meilicke, Otto Siewert, Henry C. Demitz, O. R. Roenius, and Dr. J. K. Goodrich. The directors chose the following officers: O. R. Roenius, president; H. C. Demitz, sec'y. and treas.; Dr. J. K. Goodrich, manager and Miss Ione Lavake, superintendent.

The meeting was not largely attended, unfortunately. The reports and the progress made no doubt will be of vital interest to the community, which has backed up the hospital and the people who realize that it is a valuable asset to the community.

Reorganize Test Association At Rudolph Monday

At a well attended meeting of the Rudolph Cow Testing association Monday afternoon the association was reorganized with virtually the same membership as during 1922. Practically no members dropped out, and three new members were admitted.

The old officers of the association were reelected, and Wm. Yonkman, who has served as tester for several years, was reengaged and was praised for his excellent work. Officers of the association are: C. Van Lith, president; Joe Van de Loop, vice-president; Wm. Peters, secretary and treasurer.

County Agents R. A. Peterson of Wood county and H. R. Noble of Portage county were present and gave short talks. Mr. Peterson told of the dairy products advertising campaign recently inaugurated at Madison, and Mr. Noble emphasized the value of test association work, particularly as it relates to efficient feeding.

The French Government recently gave 250 acres of land at Vimy Ridge to the people of Canada. A gigantic war memorial is to be erected by Canada on this ground commemorating the exploits of Canadian soldiers in the World War.

As a result of a will left by Le Verne W. Noyes, a prominent Chicagoan who died in 1919, 400 men and women who served in the World War will be given scholarships in the best institutions in America. Thirty scholarships for nurses are to be awarded.

The cost of the World War to Germany is estimated at $49,362,000,000.

UNDERTAKERS PLAN STATE CONVENTION

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF STATE BODY MEETS HERE TO DISCUSS PLANS FOR CONVENTION IN THIS CITY

J. Wendler, Milwaukee, president of the Wisconsin State Funeral Director's Association; Arthur Brett, Milwaukee, past president; Robert Kroes, Sheboygan, Sec'y; A. Frantenie, Madison, treas., and Peter Christianson and F. A. Schmeltzer, representatives of the traveling men's association who sell products to the members of the Wisconsin State Funeral Director's Association, are meeting today with J. R. Ragan in regard to the laying of plans for the state convention of the body which will be held in Wisconsin Rapids this summer.

Meet July 24-25

Although nothing definite was accomplished up to the hour of going to press it is expected that the convention this year will be the largest ever held by that body and will be a decided success from every point of view.

As planned now the business sessions of the association will be held July 24 and 25 and examinations will be given the following two days. The exact program has not been decided upon, but it is expected that it will conform with any ideas as to entertainment that Mr. Ragan or other business men of the city have in view.

Experts Success

Mr. Kroes, in speaking of the coming convention, said, "I firmly believe that the convention this year is going to be a decided success. In our meeting today Mr. Ragan extended every courtesy and attention and I wish to thank him on behalf of the association for the work he has accomplished towards making next summer's convention the success that it is destined to be."

Prohibit Enlistment Of Minors Without Consent

(By Associated Press)

Washington, Feb. 21—By a vote of 177 to 131 the House today insisted on its provision in the annual army appropriation bill prohibiting enlistment of persons under twenty-one years of age without the written consent of their parents or guardians.

The Senate eliminated this provision to the appropriation. Senate members declared that the House provision "would seriously cripple" the recruiting for the army since a large percent of the recruits were under twenty-one years of age.

TOMAHAWK TEAM HERE EXPECTING TO COP VICTORY

SPEEDY AGGREGATION FROM THE NORTH CANNOT SEE DEFEAT; LOCALS EXPECT TO END LOSING STREAK

Tomahawk high school basketeers arrived in this city this noon with the intent purpose of giving the Lincoln five an artistic lacing in their game that will be played tonight at the high school gym.

With one of the fastest teams that the northern city has ever turned out it is confidently expected by the visitors that they will come out victorious. They base their claims on the results of games played with teams that have played the Rapids and claim that their past record entitles them to be favorites for tonight's game.

Locals Going Good

Not saying anything, but working like Trojans, the Lincoln quintette has been diligently practicing the past week and are confident that they will emerge from their losing streak. According to Coach Ritchay the team has been showing marked improvement in their offensive play, a department wherein they have been deplorably weak up until this time. The improvement noted in the game against Wausau, when, although they were beaten, they put up a sterling article of ball and really kept the Wausau five on their toes every minute, has served to give the players confidence and they are determined to end their string of defeats tonight.

Ryan Probable Choice For Badger Coaching Job

Jack Ryan is to be the next coach of Wisconsin football destinies.

Official announcement of his appointment has not been made but those close to the situation at Madison claim his name will be the one announced when the regents meet March 7 to make known their selection.

"Ryan is to get the place and while he probably has not been signed, it's a ten to one shot that he will be selected," said a prominent Wisconsin alumnus on Tuesday. Ryan himself refuses to talk. He admits that he would like to get the berth, but claims he knows nothing more than what he has read in the newspapers.

Tom Jones, athletic director of the university who was in Milwaukee on Monday, admitted that the former Hilltop coach was being considered. Jones denied, however, that selection had been made and said that Pat Page, coach at Butler; Hod Ofstie, former Ripon coach, and Harry Hughes of Colorado were under consideration.

Selection of Ryan would be a popular move with Cardinals alumni in Milwaukee. He has made hundreds of friends here and those who do not know him personally know of his remarkable success as a coach both her and at St. Thomas, where his football teams went undefeated for five successive years.

Ryan at present is head backfield coach at Dartmouth but in the event of his getting the Madison berth Dartmouth is willing to release him from his contract.

Discussing the appropriation of $32,000,000 fo rthe Agricultural Department, Congressman Blanton, of Texas, declared that aside from the cost of maintaining county farm agent sit was his firm conviction, the result of investigations since he has been in oCngress, that agricultural interests get a benefit of about $3,000,000. All the balance is wasted in administration expenses.

Holiday In Recognition Of Public Benefactors

Madison, Wis.—To encourage the donations from wealthy citizens to public purposes, Senator Anton Kuckuk has offered a bill in the legislature which would make Feb. 12 a holiday in which each community would pay tribute to the men who had done some good for the community as a whole. The claim is made that many men make gifts to parks and public buildings, but that there is no recognition in a public way. The Kuckuk bill would supply this.

The fact that Feb. 12 is Lincoln's birthday was selected by Senator Kuckuk as a day fitting for such exercise. There are indications that the bill will be enacted into law.

TELEPHONE CALLS AVERAGE 176 A PERSON IN YEAR

STATISTICS SHOW THAT WIRES USED WOULD ENCIRCLE GLOBE AT EQUATOR 1,183 TIMES

Chicago—If every man, woman and child in the United States did his share of talking over the telephone last year, each would be entitled to 176 completed calls, according to figures compile by the Illinois Committee on Public Utility Information.

Plenty of Wire

The committee reports twenty billion telephone conversations in 1922 over the 14,200,000 telephones then in use. To handle the business 395,000 persons were employed by the 53,100 telephone companies, and, the committee impressively adds, the 29,591,000 miles of wire used would encircle the globe 1,183 times at the equator. In other words there is enough of the wire to run sixty-two double wire telephone circuits from the earth to the moon, at its mean distance from the earth, and still have 90,000 miles or so left over for other purposes.

Since Dr. Alexander Graham Bell invented the telephone in 1876 the industry had grown with such amazing speed, that the United States with only a sixteenth of the world's population, now possesses two-thirds of all the telephones in use.

Phones Increase

The 15,000,000 telephone poles in use says the statistician would build a railroad trestle thirty feet high from Chicago to Buenos Aires, while the additions and replacements each year would carry a telephone line two-thirds the way around the earth.

In 1900, he reports, there was one telephone for every 90 persons; in 1905 one for each 34; in 1910 one to each 16; in 1915 one to each 11, and in 1921 one to each eight.

Next to Americans the people of Denmark are the most telephonically talkative on earth. In 1920, when Americans averaged 160 conversations per anum for eac hman, woman and child, the Danes were second with 148. Norway and Sweden were third and fourth, both averaging about 100 conversations per inhabitant. The best the Germans, in fifth place could do, was 52. The Netherlands and Australia were between 40 and 50. Switzerland averaged 20; Great Britain 20, France 12; Belgium ten and Italy eight. The investment in telephone properties in the United States totals $1,750,000,000.

Urge Higher Penalty For Delinquent Drainage Taxes

Madison, Wis.—Raising the penalty for delinquent drainage taxes from 10 percent, the present rate, to 15 per cent, the same as for general taxes, is urged as "desirable legislation" in connection with increasing drained areas of Wisconsin land by the state repartment of engineering in a quarterly report made public today.

Clearer specifications as to the power of drainage boards to let contracts; allowing bonds to run for 20 years with only interest payments for the first five years; county treasurers required to allow interest on daily balances to the credit of the project; giving drainage boards the same right to enter navigable waters as the district law now gives its commissioners; provision for a means of dismissing a drainage proceeding if after the court has organized the project it should be advisable to dismiss it are among the things sought in a legislative way to aid in drying up the state's wet lands.

About 80 per cent of the cotton grown in the Southern states is by tenant farmers. The average cash income of cotton farmers in North Carolina is a little more than $180 per year for each family.

The Turk is beating the American to it. A majority of the members of the Angora Assembly have signed a bil lrequiring bachelors to marry before a certain age.
